Living Without God

There are two classes of people to whom God is very real—saints and sinners. The saints may be a poor nobody, but he walks in royal companionship with his Lord. The sinner has cut himself apart from God, but desolation and misery make him think all the more about Him. Even in the abyss of his guilt, he yearns to throw himself at the feet of the Savior and be lifted up and restored to peace.

Between the sinners and the saints are the neutral souls, the indifferent, the lukewarm, who boast they believe neither in heaven nor hell, who treat God with a negligence that is tantamount to reject Him. These, not the sinners, are the ones who should most readily evoke our sympathy and commiseration.

"I would that thou wert hot or cold," says Scripture. "So then because thou art neither cold nor hot, I will spue thee out of my mouth."

None is more wretched spiritually than the self-centered, professedly self-reliant individual who despises religion as a crutch for the weak. He may go to church occasionally—to please his family. He may have a code of decency to which he adheres with fidelity. He may be kind and sympathetic toward the needy or suffering, not being, after all, a bad fellow. But all his natural goodness, all his generosity of impulse become as nothing because in his folly he presumes to get

The Last Judgment
Siresses Obedience

By William E. Gliroy, D.D.

The account of the "Last Judgment" in Matthew 25 is found only in that Gospel. One cannot but wonder why neither Mark, nor John, nor especially Luke, whose Gospel enters into so much detail, refers to it. It presents some questions, also, that various commentators have sought to ansome questions, also, that various commentators have sought to answer in their own way. One dissupposed is their own way. One dissupposed is feed the poor, and have tinguished commentator, for instance, says that the judgment of which Jesus spoke was to be of which Jesus spoke was to be of who in sincerity or in insincerity, called Jesus "Lord," and the state-state of the terialistic mind — that one might question with what materialistic literalism the passage is to be taken. This is especially true as it appears in a chapter otherwise in the form of parables, which deal specifically with judgment, the Parable of the Wise and Foolish Virgins and the Parable of the Talents.

The portrayal of the Last Judgment to consciousness of something ment confirms the words of Jesus linear productions.

WASHINGTON, May 13—A³—Government acted Thursday to keep surplus 1948-crop grain on faces so that it won't interfere with marketing of this year's pros-

The Agriculture department of-fered farmers from 8 to 11.5 cents a bushel to keep in farm storage about 275,000,000 bushels of small grains soon due to be turned over to the government under its 1948 price support program.

A similar offer covering more than 400,000,000 bushels of corn is expected to be announced soon.

The effort to hold surplus grains on farms is made at a time when en farms is made at a time when efficials fear there is not enough storage space—particularly commercial facilities—to handle the prospective big supplies.

A shortage of space would weaken the price support program for new crops, officials said, and possibly cause greatly depressed prices after harvest. Only grain in acceptable storage is eligible for price support.

The department hopes the payment offer for holding surplus grains on farms will encourage farmers themselves to build additional storage space and thereby help the overall grain storage situation.

Today's storage payment offer applies to 1948-crop wheat, oats and barley put under price support loans or under government storage purchase agreements. The payment for holding such wheat on the farm another 12 months is 10 to 115 cents a bushel, depending on the area, eight cents for oats and 10 cents for barley.

The government previously had agreed to pay farmers seven cents a bushel for storing price support agreed to pay thinners support a bushel for storing price support wheat on their farms during the past year. No payment was of-fered, however, for storage of oats and barley.

The farmer has the option of rescaling his grain in storage and getting the additional payment, or delivering it to the government. of delivering it to the government. The government would have to The government would have to pit it in commercial storage, where, officials said, it would have to pay as much, if not more, than it is offering farmers.

But it would prefer to leave the commercial storage for handling new crop supplies.

The resealing offer for wheat, oats and barley will end June 30.

Assistant Adjutant Warren Tells Of Veterans' Bills

Edward Warren, of St. Louis, assistant adjutant of the Missouri department of the American Legion, spoke at the regular meeting of Legion Post 342 in the V. F. Whall, 114½ East Third street. Thursday evening.

Mr. Warren spoke at length of the influence of the American Legion in state and national affairs, and told of the Legion's part in supporting and advocating a total of 112 bills which have been passed in the national congress.

An outstanding case of this type was the prevention of passage of a bill which was to have deprived the veterans hospitals of their funds. The Legion strongly op-posed this bill, and finally succeeded in having a mental hospital built in St. Louis. This halted the ill freatment which some veteran mental cases were receiving including being jailed, stated M

Warren. He also said that there were 18,800,000 members of the American Legion in the country today with 1,350 posts. This group commands 45 percent of the total vote in the U. S., which should answer some comments that the Legion

Mr. Warren stated that their pasage was thus delayed. The Legion is supporting both these bills.

Mr. Warren stated that refund payments on the Ci insurance late this year or early in 1950.
